French Hatred Grows Against Laval

Announcement on Fate Of France Is Expected; May Begin Armed Drive

New Chief Might Attempt to Take Control of Syria Away From Free French; Leahy Is Recalled to Washington to Report

(By The Associated Press)

Crafty, Pro-German Pierre Laval was expected to disclose the fate of France today amid a highly explosive situation pointed by reports of widespread hatred against Laval among the French population.

Hailed in the official Vichy press as a "fervent patriot," Laval was to announce his new collaborationist cabinet during the day, and with it a pronouncement on French foreign policy which was awaited with ominous misgivings in allied capitals.

Washington advices said Laval's opponents in France were already planning to assassinate him, and that the new premier was prepared to go the limit in forcing the conquered nation to collaborate with the Nazis.

Simultaneously, a new belligerency in the French armed forces was reflected in reports from Casablanca, French Morocco, stating that French fighter planes took to the air yesterday when a British bomber circled over the naval base and airport, and then flew off.

French officials said the twin-engine R.A.F. bomber disappeared as soon as French pursuit planes rose to meet it.

Informed quarters in Washington said Laval might be expected to launch a military campaign to wrest Syria or French equatorial Africa from Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French forces.

By this means, it was said, Laval hoped to divert allied strength from other fronts to defend these strategic areas and thus give Adolf Hitler almost as much help as if he turned over the French fleet to Germany—at the risk of a popular revolt.

The official Vichy news agency published a four-page edition of the new premier, picturing him as a heroic figure and asserting that if the nation's leaders had listened to him in the winter of 1940, at a secret session of the senate foreign affairs committee, they "would have saved France from defeat and invasion."

Darlan Might Be Influenced

While the United States officially catalogued the Laval government as a puppet of Germany and U. S. Ambassador W. D. Leahy prepared to return home "for consultations," reliable sources said the possibility that Laval might be held in leash by the bitter personal feud between him and Admiral Jean Darlan.

Under the new regime, Darlan is not only heir-designate to Marshal Petain as chief of state but also commander of France's land, sea and air forces.

German occupation authorities announced a new attack against Nazi headquarters at Arras, in the occupied zone, took place April 15. Reprisal measures against the civilian population in Pas de Calais department, in which Arras is situated, have been ordered by the Germans, the announcement said.

Informed quarters in Vichy said Laval was having difficulty in filling several posts of his new cabinet, citing a Vichy radio report that announcement of the ministerial list would be delayed again until later in the day.

Other developments on the European front:

Aerial warfare—British R.A.F. bombers struck anew at the bomb-battered port of Hamburg overnight, following a spectacular daylight raid yesterday on Augsburg, only 100 miles from Adolf Hitler's "Eagle Nest" retreat at Berchtesgaden.

The attack on Hamburg, the 89th of the war, capped a two-day series of aerial smashes in which more than 1,000 R.A.F. planes rained hundreds of tons of explosives on Nazi targets stretching from the German-occupied French "invasion coast" to the heart of the Reich. The Germans reported "some" casualties and houses fired by incendiary bombs at Hamburg. German night raiders struck back with an attack on Southampton, killing at least 10 persons and wounding others.

Russian campaign—A Moscow broadcast reported that the Red armies operating on the northern front had captured a center of resistance constituting a major defeat for the German-allied Finns, with more than 1,000 Finnish troops killed in a two-day battle.

A Soviet war bulletin also reported continuing Red army advances on the central (Moscow) front, where Russian soldiers occupied a number of German defense

New Application Form Is Set Up To Get Priorities

Jesse Sanger, Field Agent, to Be in City Again for Conference Wednesday

A long step in helping to solve knotty priority problems of Kingston area distributors, wholesalers and jobbers engaged in essential civilian work has been taken with the setting up of a new application form—PD-IX—announced Jesse Sanger, of the New York Priorities Field Service, W. P. B., who will be here Wednesday, April 22 at the city hall, to hold an "priorities clinic."

"Insofar as materials and supplies can be made available without interfering with the war effort, priority assistance will be given to such jobbers who seek sufficient stocks to maintain essential productive and service industries in operation," Sanger said.

At the same time, a new suppliers' inventory limitation order—L-63—has been issued by the War Production Board to control the quantities of items for which priority assistance will be granted on the basis of PD-IX forms," Mr. Sanger said.

"The types of supplies covered are automotive, aviation, builders, construction, dairy, farm, foundry, grain elevator, hardware, health, industrial, plumbing and heating, railroad, refrigeration, restaurant, textile mills, transmission, welding and cutting.

"Wholesalers and dealers affected by the order are required to limit their inventories to twice the dollar value of sales of the specified types of supplies which they shipped from stock in the second preceding calendar month. However, suppliers whose total inventory at cost is less than $20,000 and less than $10,000 for any one of the listed types of supplies, are exempt from terms of the order. Special provision is also made for inventories of seasonal supplies."

In recent months, according to Mr. Sanger, many distributors fearing inability to replace supplies in their own inventories, have been reluctant to make deliveries to retailers, restaurants, and other.

Y. M. C. A. Drive Opens With Dinner Addressed by Mayor William Edelmuth

Enthusiasm was the keynote that marked the official opening of the Y. M. C. A. financial drive Friday evening to raise the $11,356 needed to carry on the work the association is doing so successfully in Kingston.

The drive was officially opened by Mayor William F. Edelmuth, and was marked by an inspiring address to the workers by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Reformed Church of this city, who stressed the fact that the work accomplished by the "Y" was that of character building of the boys in a way that would make them worthy and responsible citizens of the community when they became men.

More than a hundred men and women, who have volunteered their services to make the drive this year a success, gathered in the new gym for the organization dinner which was served by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, headed by Mrs. Clarence L. Dumm.

Kembles Are Held In County Jail on Abortion Charge

Hurley Township Residents Are Arrested Friday Night; Hearing Is on Tuesday

Urban T. Kemble, 62, and his wife, Myrtle Kemble, 49, were arrested at their home, at "Four Corners," Lucas turnpike, the former David Schenck place, Friday night on charges of criminal abortion.

When arraigned before Justice Roger H. Loughran of Hurley, an adjournment of the hearing to Tuesday evening, April 21, at 8 o'clock, was granted, in order to give the defendants an opportunity to procure a lawyer. Bail in each case was fixed at $2,500 and in default of the bail Kemble and his wife were committed to the Ulster county jail.

The arrests were made on information furnished by District Attorney N. LeVan Haver, who secured a search warrant from County Judge J. Edward Conway, sitting as a committing magistrate.

Taking part in the action last night were Sheriff Howard C. Anderson and Undersheriffs Stanley Winne, District Attorney Haver and Assistant Frederick Stang, Inspector Maynard, Sergeant Brown, Troopers Reilly and Judge of the B.C.I., Sergeant Hulse and Trooper Benson.

The specific crime for which Kemble and his wife were arrested is alleged to have been committed on March 1 of this year.

Kemble for some years resided near Eureka until his property was taken over by the city of New York for reservoir purposes. He was arrested about nine years ago on a charge of practicing medicine without a license and was fined $250 when arraigned.

Two Are Killed Cabin Plane Crashes

Warwick, N. Y., April 18 (AP)—An aviation instructor and a student pilot were killed last night when their two-passenger cabin plane crashed into a swamp one mile north of this Orange county community.

The victims were Benjamin H. Pease, 24, Tenafly, N. J., the instructor, and Timothy F. Crowley, Jr., 28, Greenwich, Conn.

State police said the plane had taken off a short time before from the municipal airport here. Coroner Frank Cromwell said there apparently were no witnesses.

War Labor Fight Planned in Senate

Roosevelt Might Provide Help by Opposing Restrictions

Washington, April 18 (AP)—Administration leaders have decided to fight out the whole question of war labor policies on the floor of the Senate next week, possibly aided with an expression by President Roosevelt opposing enactment of restrictive measures, an authoritative source said today.

In line with this decision, members said the Senate Labor Committee was likely to approve Monday a bill by Senator Ball (R-Minn.), providing relatively mild restrictions on wages and union activity.

The bill would establish a labor disputes commission which could approve increases in wages equivalent only to advances in the cost of living or where the increase did not carry the wage above the prevailing scale for that type of work elsewhere. The same conditions would apply to increases in salaries above $5,000 yearly.

Besides setting up mediation and arbitration machinery, the measure would ban the institution of closed shops except where an employer had been found by the labor relations board to have engaged in unfair labor practices within the preceding two years, or where a change was made by voluntary agreement.

Chinese Are Delighted

Chungking, April 18 (AP)—Word of the bombing of Japan spread through this Chinese war capital today with a profoundly exhilarating effect and was cheered as the "best news of the war." "Now they are getting their own medicine," said Chinese who have had their own homes battered by Japanese bombers. Official quarters withheld comment pending further reports.

Lindbergh Gets $3,500

Detroit, April 18 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh, as a technical adviser at the Ford Motor Company's bomber plant, is being paid $3,500 a year plus allowances. A Ford spokesman said the famous flier could have "written his own ticket," but preferred pay equivalent to that of a colonel in the army air corps reserve, a rank from which Lindbergh resigned last fall.

U. S. Army Captain Finds $200 Cash And Check in Bag

Capt. John B. Smith Gets Surprise Upon Arrival in This City With Grocery Supply

Opening a large paper bag in which were some groceries he had purchased Friday night, Captain John B. Smith of the U. S. Army, found another smaller bag lying on top of the groceries. In the smaller bag was a roll of bills amounting to $200 and a check for $17, as well as some loose change.

Captain Smith, who is stationed in Brooklyn, Friday decided to motor to Kingston with his wife and three small children, to spend a short vacation with his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Maroon, of 146 Broadway.

Reaching Poughkeepsie late Friday afternoon Captain Smith parked his car in front of a grocery store, and entered the store to make some purchases. The groceries were placed in a large paper bag and Captain Smith, after paying for his purchases, took the bag and placed it in the back of his car and continued his trip to Kingston.

Arriving at the Maroon home last night the captain started to unpack his purchases and was, to say the least, surprised at finding the smaller bag with the large sum of money.

Captain Smith immediately called up the Poughkeepsie police department informing the department of his finding the bag of money with his purchases, and informed the police where he had made the purchases.

The Poughkeepsie police checked with the manager of the Bridge City grocery store, and learned that the money had been placed by mistake in Captain Smith's bag by the manager of the store who had planned to take the money together with some groceries to his own home.

The Poughkeepsie police asked Captain Smith if he would leave the bag with the money with the Kingston police department which he did.

Captain Smith and his family plan to remain in Kingston over Sunday. His wife is the former Miss Agnes Maroon of this city.

Complete Agreement

United States Army Headquarters in Australia, April 18 (AP)—All governments of the united nations now are "in complete agreement" on the question of General Douglas MacArthur's supreme command, a spokesman for General MacArthur stated today. "All governments now are in complete agreement," he stated. "It can be anticipated that formal organization of the Southwest Pacific area will take place in the immediate future."

Denies Oil Shortage

Raymond W. Garrahan, secretary of Austin R. Newcombe & Co., denied today that there would be any shortage of fuel oil for home heating equipment this winter. Mr. Garrahan stated there would be a plentiful supply on hand and that all needs would be met.

Raid on Tokyo Indication Allies Have Hit Stride

Americans Need Feel No Qualms Over Japanese Squawking About Type of Attack

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Wide World War Analyst)

Bombs over Japan — flaming promise of a better world, free of barbaric aggression.

Judging from Tokyo's own accounts, this visitation of long-armed justice upon the assassins of Pearl Harbor was no flash in the pan but a thoroughly organized affair. That adds to its importance, as signalling that the Allies are beginning to hit their stride.

This historic raid—which the Japs at first attributed to unidentified planes but later credited to American bombers—appears to have been carried out on a large scale. Warplanes swooped down on the Mikado's domains from several directions to strike at numerous cities, including the capital itself, and thus give the Nipponese their first experience of this nerve-shattering type of warfare.

The indignation expressed by the high-minded Japanese over what they characterize as indiscriminate bombing needn't cause the American public any uneasiness. Tokyo and the other cities bombed here filled with military objectives.

This is no time to be soft-hearted, when our own country and homes are at stake. Just remember Pearl Harbor and Bataan, and the rapings and murders of Hong Kong and Nanking, and let the Japs go chatter their indignation into the ears of their pagan gods. There is just one thing which could mar Allied jubilation over this great event. That would be if Japan should use this as a pretext for implicating Russia and making war on the Soviet at a moment when Hitler is about to fling his full force against the Reds in eastern Europe. Tokyo's long hesitation in identifying the attacking planes warranted speculation on this point.

Grand Day for Allies

On the whole this is a grand day for Allied arms, because the blow has been struck at a moment when it can do a vast amount of good to morale in the United Nations and much damage to the Axis powers. It gives further evidence that we are assuming the initiative—a matter of vital moment—and it demonstrates that we can get at the enemy despite his isolation and defenses.

Further, as I remarked in Thursday's column regarding General MacArthur's raid on the Philippines, it gives us an exhibition of the strategy upon which we are likely to depend to crush the Japanese—war from the air.

In view of today's development, I can repeat with greater conviction that the commander-in-chief gave "Nippon a preview of the day when the sun over Tokyo will be obscured by an armada of American warplanes, for that is the way we ultimately shall exact retribution.

The effect in Europe is likely to be profound. For example, it was only yesterday that a French friend told me his people had been much depressed by the Japanese victories—a fact which couldn't strengthen their courage to withstand Hitler's demands. This bombing may reverse that feeling.

Look where you will, and this feat will be working for the Allies. It is calculated to stiffen Turkey's back as Hitler tries to bully that strategic nation into allowing him passage into the Middle East. It will bring hope to countless.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Artist And Art Patron, Dies of Heart Disease

New York, April 18 (AP)—Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, 65, widow of the financier, died at 2:50 a. m. today in New York Hospital from heart complications.

Mrs. Whitney, the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, was stricken 10 days ago.

Her husband died in 1930, leaving an estimated $100,000,000 estate to her, their son and two daughters. The son, Cornelius, a major in the U. S. Air Corps, was reported enroute to an undisclosed military post.

A noted sculptor and a leader in the art world, Mrs. Whitney established the Whitney Museum of American Art here in 1931.

Only last week the Parke-Bernet galleries announced that furnishings and decorations of the famous Whitney 38-room mansion at Fifth avenue and 68th street would be sold at auction April 29-30. The house, once one of the city's social centers, is to be demolished.

In 1934 Mrs. Whitney's name became known to millions through a bitter court fight for custody of her ten-year-old niece, Gloria Van-

Most Daring Air Attack in History Hits Four Cities

Raids Take Place at Capital, Yokohama, Kobe and Nagoya in Sweep Across 300-Mile Area; Officials Fear Allies 'Will Laugh'

By ROBERT D. GREENE (Associated Press War Editor)

Warplanes bearing the United States insignia bombed Tokyo and at least three other great Japanese cities for the first time in history today, strewing death and destruction across an 800-mile trail in a bold daylight assault that stirred bitter outcries from the Japanese people. The Japanese radio reported the raids.

The raiders, striking at high noon, dropped four-pound incendiaries and high-explosives in the industrial suburbs of the capital and also attacked Yokohama, Nagoya and Kobe.

The Japanese Embassy in Buenos Aires, Argentina, said flatly the attacking planes were American.

The raids began at 12:30 p. m., Tokyo Time, and the all-clear sounded three hours and 20 minutes later, the embassy said.

Tokyo reports insisted that only schools, hospitals and residential sections were hit, and that the damage was "slight." No bombs fell in Tokyo itself, it was said, but two capital theatres cancelled their matinees.

While the Japanese bitterly assailed what they described as "indiscriminate bombing," the Tokyo radio quoted a high Japanese official as urging the populace not to become panicky.

"The British have endured deluges of bombs for more than two full years. If we lose our composure, the Americans and British will clap their hands and laugh at us," said Mamoru Shigemitsu, Tokyo foreign office adviser.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters said the raiders—which possibly operated from U. S. aircraft carriers lying hundreds of miles off Japan—showered small incendiary bombs in the Tokyo vicinity and asserted the missiles "were not capable of causing serious damage."

(Thus in one tremendous sweep, the attackers, in what appears to have been the most daring air assault in history, struck at the heart of the Japanese Empire: At Tokyo, the capital, population 7,000,000, the world's third city; Nagoya, 1,400,000 center of the aircraft industry; Kobe, 1,200,000, chief port of the empire, shipping point for supplying the Japanese armed forces in the southwest Pacific; Yokohama, 950,000, the port for Tokyo.)

"The Imperial family is safe," a communique said.

Striking widely over the island empire, the raiders pounded Kobe, a seaport of 650,000 which lies 376 miles below Tokyo, and the manufacturing center of Nagoya (Population 430,000), while air-raid warnings shrieked in several other regions of Honshu, the main island of the Japanese archipelago.

A Japanese broadcast acknowledged damage and casualties in the densely-populated Tokyo region and asserted that nine planes had been shot down.

"The enemy planes approached from several directions," Emperor Hirohito's imperial headquarters announced, indicating that the raids may have been carried out by long-range bombers and carrier-based craft.

A German radio broadcast said that "according to an unconfirmed report in Tokyo an American aircraft carrier was sunk off the east coast of Japan today."

This was the only Axis report to hint at the possible origin of the raiders. Axis reports frequently glibly exaggerated or erroneously accounted of Japanese successes.

United Christian Education Advance Convention in Albany

Churches in Kingston and Ulster county are preparing to send delegates to the United Christian Education Advance Convention to be held in the Trinity Methodist Church of Albany, Tuesday, April 22. This convention marks the opening of a significant effort on the part of Protestant churches to enlarge and re-vitalize the work of Christian education throughout the United States. Recognizing the common task in religious work, the readers in this campaign have made the following statement: "Neighboring Christians of all churches have common spiritual aims, similar needs and the same problems. What helps or hinders one affects all. Together they may form a religious community through which the power of God can work to redeem the whole community. Forsaking the old ways of isolation, neighboring churches everywhere are joining hands to meet cooperatively the divine imperative, 'Go . . . teach.'"

Goal Is Six Members
Each church in this section is asked to have as its goal an attendance of six members at the Albany gathering; these six to be representative of the leadership in church and church school activities. Co-chairmen for this area are: The Rev. Russell Damstra, Reformed Church of the Comforter, and the Rev. H. Victor Kane, First Baptist Church; they will be glad to furnish further information to any church or church leader desiring it. The convention program is as follows:

Forenoon Session
9:30—Registration and exhibits (registration fee, 25c).
10—Worship followed by introductions.
10:25—Address, "Tomorrow's World in the Making," Dr. Brown.

points and "hundreds of enemy dead were left on the field." Hitler's field headquarters asserted that Nazi attacks on the central and northern fronts had been successful, despite difficult footing in the rotting snow and mud, and declared that "in fighting lasting several days, 45 localities and about 1,000 firing points were taken in the face of tough enemy resistance."

At sea, the allies lost the world's largest submarine. Free French headquarters in London said the 2880-ton Surcouf, which accommodated a seaplane in a small deck hangar and carried a crew of 150 men, was long overdue and "must be considered lost."

Local Death Record

Mrs. Elwood Weeks died in her home in Glasco on Thursday in her 78th year. Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Alice O'Bryon of Brooklyn, and several nieces and nephews. Funeral services were held this afternoon with burial in the Katsbaan cemetery.

'Y' Drive for $11,956 Opens

Those seated at the speakers' table at the organization dinner of the workers in the annual Y. M. C. A. financial drive, which opened Friday night at the "Y," are, reading left to right: Clarence S. Rowland, president of the "Y," Surrogate Harry H. Flemming, general chairman of the drive; Mayor William F. Edelmuth, who formally opened the drive, and Howard R. St. John, one of the co-chairmen. When the picture was taken the speaker of the evening, the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, was not present, but arrived a few minutes later.

life of Kingston, and said there was no reason why the drive should not prove a success.

In closing the mayor said that he wanted to show his appreciation of the work accomplished by the "Y" by making his own personal contribution at this time. The mayor handed Judge Flemming his contribution in cash.

Among those seated at the speakers' table last night were Judge Flemming, who presided, Mayor Edelmuth, the Rev. Mr. Oudemool, Clarence S. Rowland, president of the "Y," and Howard R. St. John.

The Rev. Mr. Oudemool in his address pointed to the vast sums that had been and were being expended in curative measures which far exceeded the sums spent for preventative measures. He stated the vast sums paid as the annual crime bill mounted in the nation, and that in order to reduce that vast amount more and better preventative measures were needed.

A program of prevention was much better and less expensive in the long run than a curative program, no matter how necessary.

The speaker said that the program carried on by the "Y" among the boys and men of the city was one designed to develop character, mind and body. A dollar spent today for preventative measures was worth more than $10 spent later for curative purposes.

In medical terms, said the Rev. Mr. Oudemool, there was the preventative measures and the curative measures. Today the medical profession was depending largely on preventative measures to aid in stamping out many diseases that had been prevalent with the aid of toxins, vaccination and other modern methods.

He illustrated his point by telling of a man running off the road in his automobile and down a steep embankment. The man was rushed to a hospital and attended. This was the curative part of our daily life, but how much better it would have been and of how much suffering would the man have been relieved if there had been a stout wall erected at the edge of the road where the car had shot off the embankment. The wall would have been placed there as a preventative measure.

One of the most important facilities to build up a preventative program was the work carried on by the "Y" throughout city and nation as a character builder. While this was a day of many appeals to the pocketbook the workers in this drive should not overlook the fact that they are asking support to carry on a much needed work among the boys and youth of the city.

Secretary Goodfellow announced at the close of the meeting that the first report meeting of the workers would be held Monday evening at the "Y."

Pine Hill Man Hits Woman Gets Suspended Sentence

Charged with having knocked down Mrs. Jennie C. Hackett, 62, of Pine Hill, August Gavin, 34, of Pine Hill, was arrested by Troopers Dunn and Maish on a charge of assault, third degree, following a hearing before Justice Flavius Dibble of Phoenixia, the justice found him guilty and imposed a fine of $30, or 30 days in the county jail, but suspended execution of the sentence.

Neighbors of Mrs. Hackett reported to Trooper Dunn that they had heard her screaming about 9:30 o'clock Friday night and the 1851 for worthy travelers passing through on their way to take up new lands in the west, a fund now having about $1,000,000.

No Definite Word Given on Regatta

Secretary Says Report Due Next Week on Yearly Poughkeepsie Race

New York, April 18 (AP)—Whether the Intercollegiate Rowing Association's regatta will be held at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., again or be shifted to some other site will not be known until next week, Secretary Asa Bushnell said today.

"Several members of the board of stewards met last night and went over the situation," said Bushnell, "but there are other members to be contacted before a definite announcement can be made."

Bushnell said the stewards were interested in holding the classic at a place where there will be the greatest participation and the saving of money to the colleges. He pointed out it naturally cost more for the colleges to train on the Hudson, where they have their own boat houses, than it would at some college town where all could use the host school's quarters.

Although Bushnell declined to be quoted, it was learned the stewards considered the addition to Poughkeepsie, Onondaga Lake at Syracuse, the Severn river at Annapolis and Lake Cayuga at Ithaca, where Cornell does its rowing. It was believed, however, that the choice had narrowed down to Syracuse and Poughkeepsie.

The navy department has been asked by Poughkeepsie's committee for ruling on whether it would approve the holding of the race at its usual site on the Hudson. The equipment used for the spectators' train has been dismantled but Bushnell said it probably would be possible to assemble other observation cars. If held on Onondaga Lake, it is the plan to erect bleachers in the state park lining the course. A three-mile course would be more practical at Syracuse than the usual four miles for the varsity race due to the condition of the water.

Washington, last year's varsity winner; California, victor in the 1941 junior varsity three-mile event, and Wisconsin have evidenced interest in the race and have been extended invitations by the association.

Navy Divers Get Undersea Worker Out of Mud Bank

Cape Charles, Va., April 18 (AP)—Two navy divers rescued Bernard O. "Dick" Hamilton, a professional undersea worker, early today after he had been held prisoner for nine hours under mud, fallen piling and 20 feet of water.

It was the Norfolk diver's second entrapment under water. A mud slide caught Hamilton about 5 p. m. Friday as he worked at a depth of 20 feet during dredging operations at the Virginia Ferry Company slip.

H. F. Converse, navy diver who flew from Norfolk, went down and reported that a cave-like shelter formed by the piling kept most of the weight of the mud from Hamilton, whose only communication with the surface was through rope signals.

Converse said he grasped Hamilton's hand and signaled to him that he would return with aid. Then he and another diver, J. M. Tuggle, worked in relays for about four hours and freed Hamilton early today.

Hamilton had a slight leg injury from mud pressure, and suffered shock and exposure. He was sent to a hospital.

A year ago Hamilton's arm was caught in chain gear, pinioning him 17 feet under water and tearing a hole in his diving suit. Water gradually leaked into his suit as Hamilton struggled to free his arm.

Hamilton waited until the water reached his shoulders, then signaled for his knife. "So I could try to cut my arm off before I drowned."

A fellow worker extricated him, however, after an hour and half.

Army Will Grant Liberal Furloughs To Inducted Men

The War Department announced today a greatly liberalized policy in the granting of furloughs to inductees immediately after their processing at reception centers.

This furlough policy is adopted so that a man selected for service need not completely clear up his financial and personal affairs prior to reporting for physical examination and induction.

The high rate of rejections at army physical examinations makes it undesirable for every selectee to assume that his order for induction will mean immediate military service, and where any question or doubt arises, the inductee should not release his possessions or otherwise clear up his financial and personal affairs before final action is taken by the army examination board. This furlough will be up to ten days in length and will begin not later than five days after induction.

The furloughs will be granted from reception centers after the men have been classified as to occupation, expressed their preferences for assignment, had their military records opened, and received their uniforms. Hence, they will be able to bring their civilian clothing home with them and make arrangements for its care or storage.

When the soldier lives at a great distance from the reception center, furloughs up to 15 days may be granted. In addition, when the induction station is more than a day's travel from the reception center, the induction officer will be authorized to grant furloughs immediately after entry into service if the recruit prefers such action. However, in such cases, it will be impossible to process and outfit the man with his uniform until his return to duty.

In order that the flow of men to the army training centers may be maintained while many of the men are on furlough, the director of Selective Service has instructed the various states to prepare to furnish additional men on call. Also in the future he will have local boards inform registrants concerning the War Department furlough policy and forward with delivery lists the names of the selectees to whom the furlough privilege should be granted to prevent hardship.

Appeals Court Action Suggested

Republican Would Have Court Fix Districts

Albany, N. Y., April 18 (AP)—Senate defeat of proposed reapportionment brought a Republican recommendation today for turning over to the court of appeals the entire task of revising legislative districts.

As leaders of both parties termed admittedly needed redistricting "apparently hopeless" as far as legislative approval is concerned, Senator Thomas C. Desmond, Newburgh Republican, says he will propose a constitutional amendment placing revision up to the state's highest tribunal.

The measure, which would have to be passed by two legislatures before submission to the voters, would provide that if the legislature fails to reapportion every 10 years as required by the state constitution, the court may readjust districts by majority vote of its seven judges.

New Plane Plant Turns Out Craft

Construction Was Started Just One Year Ago

Somewhere in the southwest, April 18 (AP)—B-24 bombers are rolling along the assembly line at a huge new plant in the southwest—just one year after ground was broken for construction of the buildings.

Tom M. Girdler, chairman of the board of directors of Consolidated Aircraft Corporation yesterday said that the first four-motored land bomber was completed 100 days ahead of the company's schedule.

Immediately following its completion, the first bomber to roll from the assembly lines was taxied from the factory to the field. The plane is capable of more than 300 miles per hour, a range of more than 3,000 miles and can carry a bomb load of more than four tons. Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, high military authorities and several thousand company employees attended the ceremony in which the builders turned over the title to the plant.

Free French Say Surcouf Is Lost

Huge Submarine Overdue and Considered Lost; Repaired in U. S.

London, April 18 (AP)—The Free French announced today that the submarine Surcouf was considered lost.

The Surcouf, a vessel of 2,880 tons, was the largest submarine in the world and accommodated a seaplane in a small deck hangar.

Free French naval headquarters issued this communique: "Free French naval headquarters regret to announce that the submarine Surcouf is considerably overdue and must be considered lost."

The Surcouf, carrying a normal complement of 150 men, participated in the Free French seizure last Christmas of the Vichy-ruled islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the Newfoundland coast.

The largest known submersible—some believed her extra size was a disadvantage—was 361 feet long, and was launched at Cherbourg November 18, 1929. She mounted two 8-inch guns.

The British seized the ship after France sued for an armistice. She was then in a British port and in a fight between French and British seamen one Briton was killed, two officers and another seaman wounded and one Frenchman was slain.

Less than two months after the war began in 1939 the French crew aboard her captured a German merchant ship 1,000 miles at sea.

The Surcouf underwent repairs at the Portsmouth Navy Yard in September, 1941, and again at Boston a month later.

Exports of merchandise from the United States were valued at $5,145,786,000 for the calendar year 1941, statistics of the Department of Commerce show.

TOO BIG TO FIGHT
One of the most sorrowful stories we've heard, in all this recruiting business, is that of the big boy who can't get into the service. He's in perfect health and vigor, sound in wind and limb, a famous football player, well educated and eager to serve, not a blot on his 'scutcheon. He's tried the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps, and they all turn him down.

They do it for the seemingly absurd reason that he's too big. He stands 6 feet 7 1/2 inches high in his bare feet and weighs 250 pounds, and the fighting services are not equipped to handle a fellow like that. No wonder Tim Baskin of Cincinnati rises up in wrath, puffs out his barrel chest, reaches up and hits the ceiling a blow that brings the plaster down, in righteous indignation because they won't give him a chance at the Japs and Germans.
Really, there ought to be some way for such a fellow to serve his country appropriately. Couldn't they enlist him as a one-man army, ship him to India or Bataan, and let him operate at his own discretion, like Gulliver among the Lilliputians?

THE WEB OF CONQUEST
It is a wonderful spider web that Japan is spinning. And it is fascinating, in a way, to watch Tokio, the mother spider, expanding that web of empire. Already it spreads over the Pacific and the rich and lovely islands of the South Seas. Slowly the strands are drawn westward over Burma, and beyond the Bay of Bengal into India itself. There will be fat living there, for Mother Spider and her brood, if she succeeds in bringing that great, fruitful land into her web.
The free world knows well the fate of nations that become the prey of the Spider of Nippon. They are bound hand and foot, paralysed by the spider's poison. They are held in a living death while their riches are sucked out of them for the sustenance of the Mother Spider and her children. When only empty shells are left, the Spider moves on to spin new webs and entrap new victims.
There are, however, ways to overcome even human spiders in their empire-building. They can be burned with fire and sprayed with lead. Such remedies will be applied increasingly until the world is cleansed of them.

VICE-PRESIDENTS
One Oklahoma selectee has sound business ideas. W. H. Van Demeer, before going to camp, organized the company of Van Demeer, Inc., with himself as president and six girl friends as vice-presidents. Each vice-president has a special function: one to send him fried chicken every month, one to provide chocolate cake, another to furnish angel food and cookies, still another to look after his socks, a fifth to see to sweaters, and No. 6 to keep him supplied with magazines. Each vice-president has a formal certificate of appointment, outlining her duties.
At last a use has been found for vice-presidents. Such executive talent will not long be wasted in a private's rank. General MacArthur had better look to his laurels.

THE ONLY BABE
Babe Ruth transformed our national sport. Before his day great pitchers like Nichols, Young, Mathewson, Alexander, Waddell, Walsh and Johnson ruled the roost. Scores of 3-2 and 2-1 were numerous. "Home-Run" Baker got his name from hitting 12 home runs in a season, besides two in a world's series. These were the days of tight baseball, the sacrifice hit and the stolen base.
"Along came Ruth," as the popular song went in his first days. In his first season after transferring from the box to the outfield, he hit 29 homers. There followed 54 in 1920 and 59 in 1921. When he quit in 1935 he had totalled 714, more than any other player in history.
And did the fans love it! The American public discovered that it wanted action in its baseball and had not been getting it. Now it came and in they packed. In the '90's the maximum salary in the National League was $2,400 a year. Make all the allowances you will for the rise in prices and wages, Babe Ruth's salary of $80,000 showed what the homer had done for the national game.

No one is likely to approach the Babe's record. Jimmy Foxx has passed the 500 mark, but is near the end of the trail, and has as much chance to hit 200 four-baggers as the writer of this editorial. A good many ballplayers have been acclaimed as the greatest, but who is there to beat Babe Ruth?

BRAVE FIGHTER
Add to the list of brave fighters: Monty Stratton. A promising pitcher for the Chicago White Sox two or three years ago, he lost a leg through a hunting accident. Determined to stay in baseball, he got an artificial leg and continued on the Sox payroll as a coach.
Now as manager of the Lubbock, Texas, team in the West Texas-New Mexico League, he says he will take his turn in the box. His main trouble is likely to be not so much the actual pitching as the fielding of his position. But his determination may overcome even this obstacle.
Some of us think we have troubles.

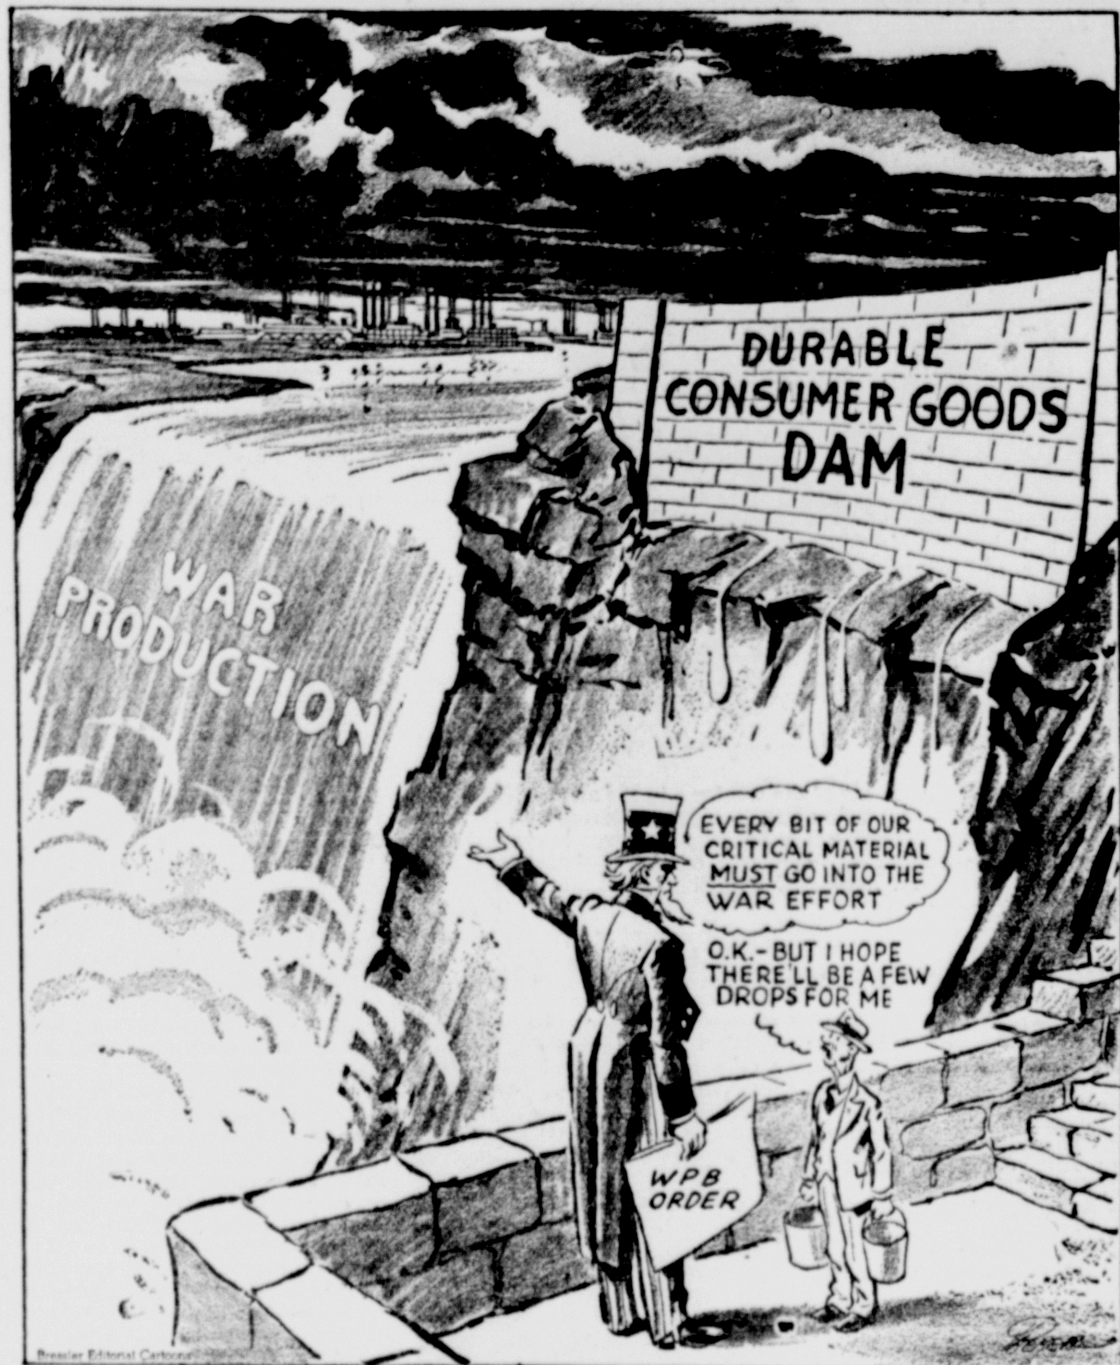

HOW TO COLLECT SCRAP
The Harrisburg, Pa., City Controller knows how to collect scrap metal for Uncle Sam. In addition to his city job, he is also a druggist. He recently announced that any boy bringing in a discarded set of automobile plates would get a free ice-cream cone. So far he has received 2,000 plates, and given away a corresponding number of cones.
This technique has been known to work for other purposes and outside Pennsylvania. It's fine as long as the ice-cream holds out, and if other druggists will help. Otherwise ingenious youngsters are apt to go pretty far afield to find more plates.

The first thing Canadians tell Americans, says a correspondent, is that we "can't win a war with a 40-hour week."
It may be assumed that the babies now being named "MacArthur" will win the next war.
In the matter of taxes, we Americans haven't seen or felt anything yet.

MELANCHOLIA
A mental condition that occurs in women in the late forties and in men in the late fifties is called involutional melancholia. The fact that it occurs at these ages shows that it is due to a lessening of the activity of the reproductive or sex glands.
It is thought that the reason that it occurs in some individuals and not in others is because those affected have always been 'worriers'. Also an emotional shock at this age may cause the condition even in one who has not been a worrier.
In his Textbook of Psychiatry, Dr. Arthur P. Noyes states that for several weeks before the symptoms of involutional melancholia occur in women, the patient is irritable, pessimistic and perhaps has crying spells. She complains of an uncomfortable feeling in her head, sleeps poorly and loses weight. Gradually the depression increases until it is profound. Sometimes she is fearful, wrings her hands, paces up and down, may strike her head against the wall, bites her nails, picks her face. She has delusions as to her bones, brain, abdomen. Consciousness, however, is usually clear.
Without treatment of any special nature about 2 of every 5 of these cases recover. However recognizing this ailment is usually to a wasting of the sex glands, treatment of sex gland extracts has been successful during the past few years.
Drs. A. A. Werner, E. E. Hoctor, and C. C. Ault, in Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, present their results with the (gland) treatment of involutional melancholia in 68 patients. This treatment was given because these physicians believe that this ailment is a severe type of the menopause.
Of their first group of 32 patients, 24 became normal; that is, were able to adjust themselves to life, and 8 were not helped.
However, in three more series of 14, 13, and 9, respectively, 36 in all of the patients became normal due to the fact that larger doses of the gland extract were given.
It is certainly gratifying to know that in addition to helping the ordinary symptoms of the menopause—hot flushes, nervousness, irritability—the gland extracts can help the great majority of severe cases that have gone on to involutional melancholia.

THE WAR COMES FIRST

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Back of those little columns of temperatures and rainfall data in our daily paper lie some 128 years of fascinating history. It's told in a neat 222-page typewritten report with a pretty discouraging title: "List of Climatological Records in the National Archives."
The first nation-wide weather reporting system was set up by two army doctors, Surgeon-General Joseph Lovell and Dr. James Tilton, in 1814. They wanted to find out whether climate influenced the health of soldiers!
Army surgeons at every post and fort were equipped with weather instruments. The observations were carried out faithfully as a whole, although Indian raids interfered once in a while.
"Owing to the threatened outbreak of the Wallapais," read an early report, "the rain gauge was abandoned for several days and was only visited the second day after the rains."
Meantime James P. Espy, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Joint Committee on Meteorology of the American Philosophical Society and the Benjamin Franklin Institute, was developing a system of 110 voluntary observers.
Seeing the need for a nationwide reporting system, Espy in 1842 began establishing himself in Washington as the "national meteorologist." A writer of the day recalls that his salary was covered by riders to "one appropriation bill after another, army, civil and diplomatic, naval, legislative, executive, and judicial," attached by his friends in Congress.
When the Smithsonian Institution was founded in 1846, Espy got a real opportunity to put his idea to work. He and Joseph Henry, first secretary of the Institution, developed a chain of observers reporting daily by telegraph.
Life for Pierre Laval, Hitler's leading disciple in war-conquered France, has been a roller-coaster ride of ups and downs since he entered politics nearly 30 years ago.
Now he's up again—tapped for the political leadership of Vichy's reorganized governing body, although Marshal Petain hangs on to the title of chief-of-state. Laval stepped out ahead of his collaborationist colleague, Admiral Jean Darlan, and now the Vichy regime may be steered into new and stranger channels in the next few weeks.
In a land noted for the tempestuousness of its politics, Laval's career has been spectacular: he rose from a humble beginning to the premiership of France, saw his cabinet crumble because of internal dissension, finally went into an eclipse until after the Nazis had hammered his country into submission.
Then he burst into the spotlight again, became Petain's right-hand man and designated successor.
With far less ceremony, he was benched six months later, because he pushed his collaborationist enthusiasms too far. The world might have heard little of him thereafter, but he stopped a bullet from the gun of a young French patriot, and for days lay gravely ill.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, April 18 — The Young Ladies' Auxiliary will meet at the home of Mrs. Edward Mains in Port Ewen Wednesday evening, April 22.
A party was given Vincent Auringer, who leaves shortly for induction into the army. The following were guests at the Joseph Scherer, Jr. place: Lester, Floyd and John Benton, Charles Webster, Harry Polhemus, Joseph, Norbert and Robert Scherer.
Mr. and Mrs. James Wesley and Mrs. Laura Winters of Kingston spent Tuesday in Nyack at the district deputy and grand mason's official visit to Calvin Court O. of A. Mr. and Mrs. Wesley were among the entertainers.
Staff Sergeant John Scherer was recalled to service from his furlough Tuesday. He motored to Albany, visiting Miss Jane Shields, there.
Mrs. Lucie Baker, and daughter, Miss Janice Baker, Miss Mildred Ludwig of Kingston and Mrs. James Wesley motored to Poughkeepsie on Thursday evening, attending the district deputy official visit of the Fourth Amaranth District.
The last meeting of the first aid unit in charge of Miss Deyo was held Monday evening at the Methodist Church basement. Miss Deyo was presented with gifts from the class.
Mr. Echkblom of Finland, who crossed the ocean in a 32 foot boat built by himself last year, is a guest at Wesley's.

HUNGER STRIKE SIFTED
Inquiry into the hunger strike among Republican prisoners in Belfast featured a session of the Northern Ireland House of Commons recently. Sir Dawson Bates, Minister of Home Affairs, said "It would be more appropriate if the questioner condemned that cruel and brutal murder of a warder." He added that the strike became violent and prisoners had to be forcibly removed from the windows of their cells. Batons were not used and no prisoner was injured, he said.

Today in Washington

Feeling Held by Union Officials About Press Is Often Caused by Extremist Reactions
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 18 — From time to time the officers of labor unions protest to the newspapers that they are printing anti-labor articles. Some of these protests are doubtless justified because in controversial matters there are always extremists whose passion runs away with their judgment. There is also the fact that the use of the word "labor" is too often carelessly applied to all laboring men when the criticism may really be intended for the labor politician or the men who exploit labor for their own personal gain.
Unquestionably there has been more criticism lately in the press about labor unions than at any time for a long, long while. Some of this criticism has mistakenly attacked the loyalty of labor, though some of it has been carefully pointed toward that part of labor's leadership which preferred strikes and work stoppages during 1940 and 1941 to all-out production.

What is difficult to understand, however, is the attitude of many of the magazines and newspapers published by the labor unions themselves. They are far from models of restraint. They contain partisan and bitter denunciations of employers and they keep alive the fires of class hatred right along.
If, for instance, anyone thinks the general press happens lately to have been critical of labor, one would be at pains to find any general newspaper or magazine that attacked labor as violently or with as intemperate language as is to be found in many of the labor union organs.
Take, for instance, the American Federation of Labor itself—the oldest trade union organization in America and one that has a splendid tradition to follow, for in the last war it furnished through the late Samuel Gompers an excellent example of labor leadership.

This month's issue of "The Federationist," which is the official organ of the A. F. of L., prints a page of photographs of members of congress, newspaper writers and radio commentators and on top of the page is the headline: "These are the men who smeared labor" and at the bottom of the page in big type is the following line: "President Roosevelt spoke of a sixth column."
Now whether one thinks the words "sixth column" are or are not an attack on the loyalty of American citizens, there can be no doubt that many people in America have been given that impression about the term. Yet in the center of the page is a photograph of Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, Democrat, who is chairman of the house naval affairs committee.

Is it fair to accuse Mr. Vinson of being a sixth columnist, just because he happens to be sponsoring legislation to limit both the profits of management and of labor?
This particular publication is circulated among the labor union locals, which in turn print labor papers. If anyone made a thorough study of the labor union press, he would find that all the attacks ever printed by the daily press against labor unions would seem mild by comparison.
There is, for instance, one labor union paper published by one of the oldest and finest international labor unions in America whose officers are men of real ability and whose record has been one of scrupulous conduct of their own offices. Yet such a high grade union maintains one of the most vicious sheets in America. It prints bitter attacks on individuals and in season and out of season publishes a constant flow of poison against the employers.
All these labor papers enjoy freedom of speech, and this corresponds to the first to defend their right to say what they please, short of statements injurious to personal integrity, which are, of course, amenable to legal process. But if, as is being argued so emphatically hereabouts, the general press contains here and there articles which are denounced as likely to produce discord and disunity in war time, the labor union press will be found to contain ever so many more articles which at a time when there should be cooperation for all-out production continue to prejudice the workers against their employers.
It is often difficult in controversial matters to know where the bitterness first started but it is safe to assume that the class warfare which is supposed to be diminished in wartime is not going to be reduced in intensity if the labor press, while asking the general press to modify its tone, fails itself to eliminate the exhortatory language and vituperative phrases that abound in its organs. Usually these publications are under the direct authority of the officers of the union and hence they are subject to direct supervision by their labor unions. That is why the persistence of bitter attack on employers in publications that are circulated widely throughout American factories can hardly produce that spirit of conciliation and goodwill between management and workers needed to bring victory.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the outstanding women of Kingston in the early days of the new century was Mrs. Hattie B. Michael, wife of Superintendent of Schools Myron J. Michael. She died in her home on Maiden Lane on February 26, 1925, after a long life of usefulness in city affairs.
Mrs. Michael was a woman of keen intellect, and had always taken an interest in health affairs in the city. This was early recognized by Roscoe Irwin while he was mayor and he appointed her a member of the Board of Health a position she held for many years.
When Palmer Canfield became mayor he reappointed Mrs. Michael to the health board. Her last term of office as a health commissioner expired March 31, 1924, and she was not reappointed owing to illness.
It was while she was serving on the health board during the Canfield administration that she became Kingston's first policewoman, being sworn in by Chief of Police J. Allan Wood as a special officer. Always deeply interested in politics she was the Democratic candidate for member of assembly one year, but was defeated.
Mrs. Michael for years was an active member of the Monday Club and Wiltywick Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. She had also served as president of the Federation of Women's Clubs.
Her husband, who died some years later, served the city as head of the school system for many years. He was one of the outstanding men in the educational field in the Hudson valley.
The M. J. Michael School was named in his honor when it was erected a few years ago.
I recall that on February 24, 1915, the board of directors of the local Y. M. C. A., elected George D. Beckwith to serve as general secretary of the association. He succeeded Frederick R. Starkey who had resigned as general secretary to become religious work

High School Juniors Hold Spring Dance

The Junior Class of Kingston High School held its annual spring dance last evening in the gymnasium of the Michael School. The theme for decorations was the Little Red School House with a replica of an old fashioned schoolhouse and benches used. Music was furnished by Lew Roosa and his Wolverines.

Arrangements for the dance were made by Miss Marie McAndrew, chairman of ticket committee, and Donald Dunn, chairman of decoration. They were assisted by the committee of the Misses Theodora Kenna, Maureen Troy, and Jack Pope, Leonard Robin, Leonard Boice, Thatcher Wood, Nicholas Carl, Frank Oulton, and John Cerasero.

Mrs. Arthur J. Laidlaw, principal, and Mrs. Clarence Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schmid, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rowland, Miss Blanche Kirschenblum, Mr. and Mrs. Loryne Connick, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. George Kenna were chaperones for the evening.

You're in the Army Now!
I used to blow—
No matter how my life might be,
Beset by tears or cheers or jeers,
I'd be the driver of my car,
I'd be the shifter of its gears!

But now I know—
I'm riding on the U. S. van,
On which I'm just another man;
For Uncle Sam does not allow
Any back-seat driving now!

America is going ahead—war or no war—
This is the greatest land on the face of the globe—
Keep doing business in the old-fashioned American way—
Buy bonds with your profits.

Father (to young son sucking his thumb)—Hey, boy, don't bite that thumb off. You may need it when you get old enough to travel.

A Good Slogan
The man who relaxes is helping the Axis.

Patience
In his recent speech to the United States Congress, Winston Churchill said we Americans would patiently have to await results.

Patience has ever been a virtue and still is, but we Americans have the habit of hustling while we wait.

And that's the kind of patience we are going to exhibit in our war with Japan.

First—I understand that Bill Smith is another man since his operation.
Second—Yes, he's calling himself Bill Jones to avoid paying the hospital bill.

Certainly we are glad to live in a small town. We are proud of it. We like to walk down the street, stop in at the stores, sit in the oil and grease at the filling stations or at the garages. We like to do all of these things and to be able to call everybody by their first name.

Robber—Don't be scared, lady. All I want is your money.
Old Maid—Oh, go away. You're just like all the men.

Whether compulsory or voluntary speed limits slow down the pace of automobile travel, we'll be able to see—and enjoy—a lot more of the beautiful American countryside.

Guest in hotel—Manager, please send me a full length mirror.
Manager—Why there is a half length mirror in every room.

Guest—That's just the trouble. Twice, already, I've gone down to the dining room without my trousers.

Young men who drive with one hand are usually headed for the aisle of a church—some to walk down it, others to be carried.

Automobile Progress
1940—No running boards
1941—No gear shifts
1942—No tires
1943—No cars.

Unemployment Insurance Sum in Area Is $33,100

Albany, N. Y., April 18.—Unemployment insurance benefits of $4,377,797 in the form of 345,078 individual checks were distributed to unemployed men and women in New York state during March. It was announced today by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller. This figure represents a decrease of 6.5 per cent from February, 1942, and a drop of 21.2 per cent from a year ago.

January payments for the Kingston employment office amounted to $33,100.37 for the 1941-1942 benefit year, in the form of $2,686 separate checks. The average benefit payment for a single week of unemployment in the Kingston area was $12.04 for the month.
Payments to workers in manufacturing and construction industries declined 16 and 12 per cent, respectively, from February. Payments to workers in trade, service, and other industries showed increases over the previous month. The most notable change among the manufacturing industries was a 30 per cent increase in payments to workers in the apparel industry.

Secret Orders

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Chapter Nine Accident

IN SPITE of pride that kept her chin up, her smile smiling, Stephanie's eyes followed Kurt, her pulses like some faithful barometer, reported his movements through the crowded room. And though she stood talking animatedly with Henri, the moment Kurt spoke to an officer and then strode quickly from the room, her heart told her he had gone.

It told her, too, the moment he returned, stood watching the dancing couples from the doorway. Like a magnet, she felt her eyes drawn to him. Then, amazed, realized that he had been looking for her. He crossed the room quickly toward her.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, laying a hand on Henri's arm. "I have a message for Miss Merrill." Then, with that quick, infectious grin, "I promise to bring her back to you right away."

Mute, Stephanie let him guide her out of the long room into the deserted library. By the time he turned to face her, to take her hands in his, she had her trembling under control.

"Stephanie, I wanted to tell you," he began, his blue eyes searching hers. "I've just had orders we're to leave tonight. Secret orders of course. Only the Colonel knows where we're going. But I've a hunch this is no joy ride. I wanted to say goodbye."

"Goodbye," she echoed in a dry little whisper. "How—long do you think you'll be gone?"

He shrugged. "Who knows?" His fingers tightened around hers. "That's why this is—goodbye."

"Good luck, then, and—" she dragged her glance away from his—happy landings.

"Thanks, I've got to skip back to quarters now and get my gear packed up. Will you make my apologies to Vicky and the others?"

Stephanie concentrated on the second button of his coat. "Certainly. They will all want me to thank you for a lovely evening."

A lovely evening, she wept silently.

The Kiss
SUDDENLY, one finger under her chin, Kurt tilted her face until she had to look at him. "You're so damned sweet"—between clenched teeth. Then he kissed her. A swift crushing caress that bound her to him forever even as the gesture of the next moment put him out of reach forever.

"Forgive that one, Stephanie," he apologized instantly—and heartbreakingly. "And—goodbye now."

For a long moment she stood staring at the doorway that had swallowed him up. He had gone. She would probably never see him again. Ever. And with him, she realized suddenly, had gone part of herself.

Henri found her then, carried her back to the dancing, the laughter, the gaiety. And finally she found poise enough to give them Kurt's message.

"Oh how infuriating," Vicky frowned. "That means his whole squadron will probably be sent and that absolutely decimates my cocktail party tomorrow."

Stephanie laughed, an acrid imitation of her real laugh. "That is a disaster."

"Well, it is. I've planned this party for weeks."

"And now," Henri smiled apologetically. "I'm afraid I too, will have to express my regrets, Vicky."

Vicky turned to him, her lovely brows arched. "You too? But surely you aren't flying under any secret orders tonight?"

Flying under secret orders! Stephanie repeated that silently while Henri explained about his sudden urgent business in the city.

And later when she'd undressed, stood a moment at Aunt Allison's guest room window watching the moon silver the broad fields stretching toward the Bay, she was suddenly aware of the growing thunder of airplane motors. Like a giant swarming of Gargantuan bumble bees, the drone came out of the north. Westward now—high over the Golden Gate—out over the vast black world of the Pacific.

"Goodbye Kurt," she whispered. "Good keep you safe—my love." And turning, stumbled to the bed where she buried her sobs in her pillow.

Vicky's party was very gay. An hour of telephoning that next morning had soon filled the gaps in the guest list that Kurt's Squadron had left. And Vicky, looking her best in a lovely fuchsia tea-gown, seemed already to have forgotten Kurt and the others. But Stephanie hadn't. She even felt a growing irritation that the party should succeed, that life should go on so calmly when fifty boys were "somewhere in the Pacific" risking their lives because their duty demanded it.

On The Pier
SHE passed hors d'oeuvres docilely and wished that something would happen to grant her an excuse to leave. The something did happen:

One of Aunt Allison's white-capped maids brought summons to the telephone. It was Maguire. Calling from Titan. There'd been an explosion. Her father was hurt. They were sending him to San Francisco at once, in the power launch.

By leaving a note for Vicky with the maid, and by driving one of Aunt Allison's cars practically in defiance of all laws of gravity and state highway, Stephanie got to the pier just as the launch from Titan pulled in.

"Daddy," she called as she recognized Guy Merrill's tall figure on the foredeck.

He looked up, grinned, waved a bandaged hand toward her.

"Daddy, are you hurt badly?" she called and raced down the dock.

He shook his head, climbed over the side slowly but unassisted. "No, honey, just a bad burn on my arm here. Nothing that won't be all right in a few days."

"Are you sure?" She took his good arm, hugged it close. "What happened? Tell me."

"Oh, just a stupid accident." He glanced around then smiling but Stephanie caught the wary alertness in his eyes.

More than a stupid accident, all right. She knew that. And knew also that he didn't consider it wise to discuss it here where they might easily be overheard. She followed his glance now to the deck of a small fishing boat lying alongside the launch. A stoic Japanese fisherman sat cross-legged on the deck mending a net. The stiff Bay breeze brought the sharp smell of fish and Stephanie wrinkled her nose.

"Goodness, let's go."

As they walked back along the dock toward the street, their heads bent against the battering wind, someone in a dark blue overcoat strode past. From the tail of her eyes, Stephanie caught something familiar. Turning, she looked back over her shoulder.

A tall man, strangely familiar, walked casually to the edge of the dock, stood a moment studying the dingy little fishing boat. Then, glancing up as if to make sure he was not observed, he looked squarely at Stephanie.

It was Henri de la Pagerie.

He smiled then, waved, started toward her. But even as she answered that smile, she could not forget that strange notion that impeccable Henri, the perfect diplomat, had certainly intended to board that smelly little fishing boat! That, despite his smile, seeing her was not exactly a pleasant surprise!

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

Regardless of the fact that men 45 and over are not required for military service they must carry with them at all times the registration certificate given to them at the time they register, Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York State Director of Selective Service, said today.

Having the registration certificate is legal evidence that the person to whom it has been issued has complied with the law and has registered. Selective Service Regulations with regard to the possession of the certificate read:

617.1 Effect of failure to have Registration Certificate in personal possession. Every person required to register must have a Registration Certificate (Form 2) in his personal possession at all times and, upon request, must exhibit it to any law enforcement officer, any official of National Headquarters for Selective Service, or any member of the local board or board of appeal. The failure of any such person to have such Registration Certificate (Form 2) in his personal possession or to exhibit it upon the request of any officer, official, or board member authorized by this section to make such request shall constitute a violation of these regulations. The failure of any such person to have such Registration Certificate (Form 2) in his personal possession shall also be prima facie evidence of his failure to register.

617.2 Wrongful possession of, or making, altering, forging, or counterfeiting, Registration Certificates prohibited. It shall be a violation of these regulations for any person to have in his possession a Registration Certificate (Form 2) issued to some other person, or to permit a Registration Certificate (Form 2) issued to him to be in the possession of any other person; or to falsify, make, alter, forge, or counterfeit, or to cause to be falsified, made, altered, forged, or counterfeited, or to willingly aid or assist another to falsify, make, alter, forge, or counterfeit, or to utter or publish as true, or cause to be uttered or published as true, or have in his possession with the intent to utter or publish as true, or such false, altered, forged, or counterfeited Registration Certificate (Form 2); or to exhibit or present to any person any such false, altered, forged, or counterfeited Registration Certificate (Form 2), knowing the same to be false, forged, altered, or counterfeited.

Regulations with regard to the possession of the certificate apply also to registration or procurement of the Fourth Registration, General Brown pointed out.

RIFTON

Rifton, April 18—The Red Cross first aid class of Rifton met as usual last evening at Rock School for its seventh lesson under the leadership of Mrs. Windrum. The class will again convene Wednesday of next week, April 22, at 7:30.

Mrs. Battelero and son of New York spent several days of their Easter vacation at their summer home here.

Miss Harriet Tigar of Lynbrook, L. I., spent Easter at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles Tigar.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schellhorn of Brooklyn spent the Easter weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Walker.

The neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walker are glad to learn that they are both much better after their recent illness.

Private Hayward Mitchell who is now stationed at Fort Geo. Meade in Maryland spent Easter at the home of his mother.

Private Walter Jacoby stationed at Mitchell Field, spent the weekend in the village as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Peterson.

Walter Friedman who recently enlisted in the Navy is now at Newport, R. I.

Miss Dorothy Schikler of Kingston was a dinner guest Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ashcraft.

The former Jacoby property which was recently purchased by Mrs. C. Grozinger, is now being put into two first class apartments.

Mrs. George Stern had as guests for the Easter vacation her sister-in-law and son of New York.

Walter Johnson of Brooklyn has been visiting his mother the past week as he expects to enter the service shortly.

Claud Davis spent the week-end at his home here. Mr. Davis has been employed at Lake Mohonk all winter and Mrs. Davis will leave next week to resume her duties at that resort for the coming season.

Mrs. Sylvia Salmi has returned to her home here after being employed for the winter at St. Augustine, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Groth of New York were recent visitors at the home of his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Nat Phillips had their daughter, Sandra Rae, christened in Kingston Easter Sunday.

Miss Ethel Eckert spent several days of her Easter vacation visiting friends in Paterson, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clement and children, Barbara and George, Jr., spent the Easter vacation at the home of Mr. Clement's mother in the Bronx.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Resnick and Mr. Resnick's mother, of Elizabeth, N. J., spent several days as guests of Mrs. Pekarsky.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Terpening had several dinner guests from Amsterdam and from New Jersey last Sunday. Also her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eckert, Louis, Jr., and Corinne of New Palz.

Among the boys leaving Rifton for induction into the service this week were: Andrew Davis, Elmer Aho and Elmo Aho and Oliver Stokes.

An invitation is extended by the Rev. Donald Finley of the Methodist Church to all Riftonites to attend church services next Sunday at 9 a. m. Sunday School session immediately thereafter at 10 a. m.

Allied Planes Attack Tokyo

claims, however, in a search for information.

Conceivably, the raiders could have struck from the China mainland, from Vladivostok in Russian Siberia across the narrow Sea of Japan, or even from the Aleutian Islands of Alaska. There has been no indication, however, that Russia had become involved with her old enemy.

Japanese central defense headquarters said two of the attacking planes bombed Nagoya and that a single raider sprinkled incendiaries over Kobe. It said "no serious damage was caused."

Flames Break Out
Flames broke out in the wake of the planes. The Japanese said incendiaries were dropped at six places in the vicinity of Nagoya and at three places in Kobe, but declared the fires were brought under control.

"The enemy strafed farming villages in the Wakayama and Yokkaichi Stiga prefectures with machine-guns, but no damage was caused," central defense headquarters asserted.

Japanese broadcasts said the raiders avoided the heart of Tokyo, dropping their bombs on the outskirts of the sprawling, flimsily constructed city. Many of Tokyo's big war industries are on the outskirts.

The Berlin radio said fire of unannounced origin destroyed more than 400 buildings and inflicted severe casualties in Oguni, in northern Japan, but it was not known whether the fire had any connection with the raids.

In Tokyo, a Japanese radio announcer admitted only damage to grammar schools, hospitals and cultural establishments," and he declared:

"Mounting indignation is being felt among the people."

A Tokyo dispatch to D.N.B., the German news agency, said the capital's air raid warning lasted seven hours.

Metropolitan Tokyo experienced its first taste of enemy invasion shortly past noon Saturday when a small unit of unidentified planes appeared shortly following the alert warning," the Tokyo radio said.

"They batted about, releasing a few bombs on the outskirts of the city."

Japanese intercepter planes immediately took chase. The hostile planes were seen winging at high speed, but were made easy prey for the Japanese pursuit planes.

Jap Losses Given as 'Light'
The announcer said Tokyo's anti-aircraft batteries put up a heavy barrage and that "our losses were extremely light."

Domei, Japanese news agency, gave a curious version of Japanese behavior under the nation's first aerial attack, asserting that "in the downtown districts of the Ginza and Narunouchi, business flooded on as usual with buses, streetcars and other vehicles running without interruption."

"Children peered into the sky for hostile aircraft."

While the Japanese air defense smashed down the invaders, lunch hour crowds unhurriedly finished their meals and returned to their offices satisfied that defense workers were doing their jobs well."

The account failed to explain why ordinary air precautions—such as halting of traffic and movement of civilians to cover—were not taken, in view of Japan's vaunted program of drills.

News of the attack, the first direct punch at Japan since her treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor 19 weeks ago tomorrow, caused great jubilation in England. London newspapers splashed the story across their front pages.

"And now Tokyo—Noon raid by Allied Planes!" said a two-line banner in Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard.

Other developments in the far Pacific theatre:

Philippines—Japanese dispatches said Japanese planes cooperating with land troops dispersed a force of 3,000 American-Filipino defense soldiers 12 miles north of Cebu City, on Cebu Island, 250 miles south of Manila.

Domei said the defenders were routed from their hill positions and "fled in confusion into the hinterland, leaving 350 dead and many prisoners."

Domei also asserted that Japanese troops invading Panay Island, just north of Cebu, had occupied Pavaia, and that the Japanese flag had been hoisted over the main port city of Iloilo, 25 miles south of Pavaia.

Burma war front—British troops fighting a dogged rearguard action more than 200 miles north of Rangoon completed the destruction of the rich Yenagyang oil fields despite Japanese attempts to prevent their demolition, and fell back to new positions.

About 10,000 wells were blown up.

British armored forces were reported attacking Japanese advance guards 18 miles north of Yenagyang, while on the Chinese-held left flank, Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's troops were said to have beaten off 800 tank-supported Japanese attempting to cross a stream 60 miles east of Toungoo. Losses were heavy on both sides.

Japanese army headquarters said 4,500 British troops had been killed or wounded in the Burma campaign between March 10 and April 15 compared with Japanese losses of 590.

A New Delhi communique said a squadron of U. S. heavy bombers violently attacked Japanese-held Rangoon Thursday, blasting docks and harbor installations and returning unscathed to their bases.

Japanese Version
Tokyo (from Japanese broadcasts) April 18 (AP)—Allied battle planes identified here as American swooped upon the Tokyo-Yokohama region with fire and explosive bombs for the first time today and fear of their lethal cargoes prompted air raid warnings across more than 800 miles of the Japanese Archipelago.

The long reaches of Honshu, Japan's major island; Shikoku, which nestles in the lower arm of Honshu; and Hokkaido, to the north were under alerts or the bombsights of the raiders for hours, Japanese announcements disclosed.

Fires, casualties and damage were left in the wake of the squadrons, from which it was authoritatively announced that nine planes were shot down.

Broadcasts in Japanese, Chinese and English reported the details.

Observers said they could see clearly the American Red, White and Blue U. S. insignia.

"The Imperial family is safe," a communique said.

"The enemy planes approached from several directions," said a communique of Emperor Hirohito's imperial headquarters.

Bombs dropped also upon Kobe, a seaport of 650,000 which lies 376 miles below Tokyo, and the manufacturing center of Nagoya, the home of 800,000.

Warnings sounded as well in several other areas of Honshu, the main island of the Japanese Archipelago.

Central defense headquarters announced two planes bombed Nagoya and a single craft sprinkled incendiaries over Kobe. It declared "no serious damage was caused."

Fires broke out in the wake of the planes. Authorities said incendiaries were dropped at six places in the vicinity of Nagoya and at three places in Kobe. The flames were said to have been brought under control.

"The enemy strafed farming villages in the Wakayama and Yokkaichi Stiga prefectures with machine-guns, but no damage was caused," central defense headquarters said.

A Tokyo dispatch to D. N. B., the German news agency, said the capital's air raid warning lasted about seven hours.

A Berlin radio reported that a fire of unannounced origin had destroyed more than 400 buildings and killed or injured a considerable number of persons in Oguni, in northern Japan. It was not known whether that disaster had any connection with the raids.

(United States War and Navy Departments had no immediate comment. Military observers, however, have considered mass onslaughts by air against the flimsily constructed strategic centers of Japan an essential preliminary of the all-out drive to clear the invaders from the southwest Pacific. Secretary Stimson said yesterday that the U. S. Army would be ready for the offensive soon.)

Nine Planes Destroyed
Tokyo radio announcers, alternating Japanese and English language broadcasts, asserted that nine raiders were destroyed; that a number of bombs were dropped, but that the total of damages and casualties was slight.

(Axis capitals habitually minimize the effects of allied thrusts. Destruction of military and industrial establishments normally draws no comment.)

(Greater Tokyo, embracing industrial and transportation areas at the heart of the empire, has a population of more than 7,000,000, about one-tenth of the people of the island. In Yokohama, a major Pacific port 18 miles away, live 865,000.)

A Japanese language announcement alleged the raiders did not attempt to hit military establishments and "inflicted damage on grammar schools, hospitals and cultural establishments."

"These planes were repulsed by a heavy barrage of our defense guns," the announcer said. "I wish to reveal that our losses were extremely light."

"Metropolitan" Tokyo experienced its first taste of an enemy invasion shortly past noon Saturday when a small unit of unidentified planes appeared shortly following the alert warning," it was announced. "... They batted about, releasing a few bombs on the outskirts of the city."

"Japanese intercepter planes immediately took chase. The hostile planes were seen winging at high speed, but were made easy prey for the Japanese pursuit planes."

"Ironically enough, the bombs dropped struck several homes, while other reports indicated that a school and a church were hit."

"Military authorities disclosed that none of the military establishments were made targets of the raid."

"First official reports of the raid operating from the eastern army headquarters revealed that nine enemy planes had been shot down."

The broadcast closed with a statement that "Mounting indignation over the indiscriminate bombing is being felt among the people."

(This plaint from the nation which executed the treachery of Pearl Harbor 19 weeks ago tomorrow suggested that the Japanese were leaning at last to the striking power of the peoples they hoped to drive from the Pacific.)

(The announcement that the planes converged from several directions suggested a combination of operations by long-range bombers and carrier-based craft.)

(That such a feat is entirely possible was shown by the destructive raid by a U. S. naval task force March 4 on Marcus Island, within 1,000 miles of Japan, and the 13-bomber attacks against Philippine bases this week which involved a 4,000-mile round trip from Australian bases.)

(While Japan had never before felt the jar of aerial bombs, Chinese fliers made pamphlet raids on various populous centers of the islands in 1938. Tons of literature were dropped in an effort to influence the Japanese people against the invasion campaign their military leaders started in 1937.)

Domei, the official Japanese news agency, pictured the people as unperturbed throughout the raiding.

"As the enemy aircraft appeared for the first time over the Tokyo-Yokohama region as the people remained calm and untrifled," Domei said. "Unperturbed housewives and civil defense units closed windows and checked anti-air raid equipment with the same cool efficiency shown in practice."

"Children peered into the sky for hostile craft."

"In the downtown districts of the Ginza and Narunouchi business flowed on as usual with buses, street cars and other ve-

Nelson Says U. S. Output Outdoes Axis' Factories

New York, April 18 (AP)—The United States has "passed the turning point" in war production and the output of the United Nations today exceeds that of the Axis powers—that is the statement of Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board.

"We can see daylight ahead in our whole war production effort," he told the American Society of Newspaper Editors last night.

Nelson coupled his optimism with caution, however, pointing out that today's production figures do not mean "that we are going to win the war next month or that we can start out tomorrow to take the offensive."

"During the next year or so we are going to work harder and sweat more than ever before in our lives," he said, "but we can see ourselves working toward victory."

"It is safe to predict" that by the end of the year the Allies shall have overcome the accumulated reserve built up by Japan since 1930 and by Germany since 1933, Nelson told the editors. From then on, he added, "we shall have our enemies at an increasing disadvantage."

The editors close their convention today with an off-the-record address by Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the eastern defense command and the first army, and a demonstration of chemical warfare service on Governors Island.

Allied Fighters Bring Down 6-1 Ratio of Planes

By TOM YARBROUGH

An advanced Allied base in Australia, April 17 (Delayed) (AP)—Allied airmen have been shooting down six Japanese planes for every one lost in combat over the northern Australia war theatre.

Lieut. General George H. Brett said today, and now are trying to find ways for bringing the foe over.

Lieut. Gen. Brett, General Douglas MacArthur's deputy commander and air chief, is in the midst of a tour of air bases of the United Nations.

He said the possibilities of Japan being unable to invade Australia were "much better than they were two or three weeks ago," added.

"We engaged in positive defense, doing all we can to go out and hit the enemy instead of keeping him off."

"Everything up this way has completely changed since January," he said in an interview.

"The boys are on their toes and doing a beautiful job; they are coming along good and strong."

Mel Ott Gets 1st Heave-Ho From Game as Manager; Braves Top National Loop

Yankees Skim Through 1-0 Win Over Boston; Brownies Continue to Startle Fans

(By The Associated Press)

If there's a more startling sight in this young baseball season than the Boston Braves on top of the National League, it's Mel Ott of the New York Giants being bounced from a game for arguing with an umpire.

It took Ott only four days to crash the circle once dominated by Leo Durocher and Frankie Frisch, and that amazing maneuver kept the Braves in their unfamiliar position at the head of the parade.

The score was 1 to 1 at Boston yesterday afternoon, with Hal Schumacher of the Giants and Dick Erickson of the Braves locked in a pitching duel.

Ott's home run in the top half of the fourth inning had tied it up after Nanny Fernandez had sent the Braves out in front with a four-bagger of his own, one of the two hits off Schumacher in three frames.

Then the Braves came to bat and Fernandez led off with a walk. Paul Waner forced the runner at second, and umpire Ziggy Searf ruled that Waner reached first base ahead of the throw on the attempted double play.

Then, as 4,043 fans gasped in surprise, Ott charged in from his right field post and Schumacher and shortstop Billy Jurges, the Giants' captain, joined him in a three-play argument that had the usual chance at victory.

Sears jerked his thumb toward the clubhouse and the Giants' new boss, who had been tossed out of only three games in 16 years as a major leaguer, headed for the showers—loser of the first debate in his managerial career.

Sears also chased Jurges and Schumacher, and looked around for more additions to the procession as the Giants hustled back to their positions while they still had enough men to play.

Mize Slams Homer

Harry Feldman, with no warm-up whatsoever, replaced Schumacher on the mound, three hits and a walk produced three runs and that was the ball game.

Johnny Mize whittled the margin down for the Giants with a sixth-inning home run and a trio of blows added another tally in the seventh, but rookie Johnny Sain arrived on the scene in time to save the 4-3 decision for the Braves.

Meanwhile, the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns continued along their unbeaten ways in the American League.

The world champion Yankees dropped the Boston Red Sox from the ranks of the undefeated with a 1 to 0 shutout. Two hits and an error produced the only tally, with Charlie Keller's single scoring the run. Ernie Bonham of the Yankees and Oscar Judd of the Sox both went the route, but Boston collected six hits to New York's five. It was the fourth victory in a row for the Yankees.

The Browns kept pace with the champions by nosing out the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 6, although they also were out hit, 12 to 10.

In fact, every winner in the American League and two of those in the senior circuit got fewer hits than their opponents yesterday. And seven of the eight games were decided by a single run.

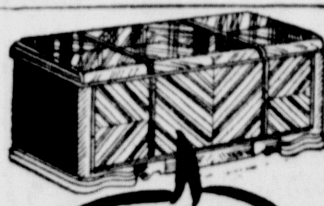

At Cleveland, Ted Lyons pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 1 to 0 decision over the Indians. Bill Knickerbocker's tenth inning home run gave the Athletics a 5 to 4 victory over the Washington Senators at Philadelphia after Bob Johnson had brought the A's from behind with a tying homer in the ninth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers downed the Philadelphia Phils, 7 to 1, with a 12-hit attack as Johnny Allen hurled six-hit ball, and the Pittsburgh Pirates stayed even with the league champs by tripping the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2.

The Chicago Cubs cashed in on Johnny Vander Meer's wildness to squeeze out a 3 to 2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Detroit — Ray (Sugar) Robinson, 145½, New York, won by technical knockout over Harvey Dubs, 144, Windsor, Ont. (6).

Hollywood — Carlos Chavez, 123½, Los Angeles, outpointed Lou Salica, 119½, New York, world bantamweight champion (10) (non-title fight).

Dunlap After Crown

Pinehurst, N. C., April 18 (AP)—George J. Dunlap, Jr., of Pinehurst, who has won the north and south amateur golf tournament here six times, needed to win only one more match today to give him his seventh crown. Dunlap was a finalist, along with Powell Crichton, Jr., of Bronxville, N. Y. The final match was over the 36-hole route. In the semi-finals yesterday Dunlap was hard pressed to beat Don Carmichael of Columbus, 2 up on the home green. Crichton, a newcomer in the tournament, came through the semifinals with a 1 up win over Ben Goodes of Reidsville.

Mullens and Joneses Bowl In State Tournament Today

Doubles and Singles Have Been Listed for Sunday Afternoon; Kingston Has Five Teams

This afternoon at 4 o'clock two of Kingston's top-flight bowling aggregations were scheduled to appear in the New York state bowling tournament in Binghamton. Singles and doubles will be rolled Sunday afternoon.

Kingston will be represented by a total of five teams in this year's state tournament, the largest since local clubs started competing in the tournament.

One of the teams who started rolling this afternoon at 4 o'clock

All K.H.S. Athletes Are Expected to Attend; Coach Boelter of Syracuse Speaks

The third annual banquet of the Kingston High School Athletic Association will be held Friday evening, May 1, at 6:30 o'clock in the Myron J. Michael School gymnasium.

According to Coach G. Warren Kias the association has secured William A. Boelter, backfield coach of football at Syracuse University, as guest speaker. Coach Boelter, besides addressing the athletes, cheerleaders and other invited guests, also will have with him numerous films of motion pictures showing the standout games on the Syracuse 1941 football schedule.

The committee also is endeavoring to have Tommy Maines, varsity player with the Orange grid-ders last year, and one of the most prominent ball players ever to play with the Maroon and White school, at the banquet. It is also being arranged to have Jack Fallon, a member of the freshman grid team last fall, here.

Since the initial function of its kind when the committee merely tried to see what interest could be obtained the Athletic Association has arranged a yearly event which pays tribute to the athletes of every sport now operating in the school.

It is expected that the committee will announce a few other local speakers within a day or two.

Baseball Will Do Its Part for Army And Navy Benefit

All Clubs Will Donate Entire Receipts of One Game; All-Star Contests Will Help

New York, April 18 (AP)—Baseball is in the war now—with a unified fund raising program for Army and Navy relief and a double-decker all-star series.

Every Major League club has agreed to set aside the entire receipts of one home game to be divided equally between the Army Emergency Relief Fund and the Navy Relief Society, and as many Minor League clubs as are financially able will join in the movement.

These same service charities also will receive everything over $100,000 that is taken in at the two All-Star games, the first of which will be the usual clash between the best players of the National and American Leagues at the Polo Grounds in New York July 6 and the second of which will watch this winner with a Service Team at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium July 7.

If the men are available "without interference with the successful prosecution of the war" as Landis puts it, the Service team could send a formidable lineup like this against the Major Leaguers:

Catcher — Frank Pytlak, Red Sox.

First Base—Hank Greenberg, Tigers.

Second Base—Benny McCoy, Athletics.

Shortstop — Cecil Travis, Senators.

Third Base—Harry Lavagetto, Dodgers.

Center Field—Pat Mullin, Tigers.

Right Field — Sam Chapman, Athletics.

Lieut. Gordon (Mickey) Cochran, former manager of the Detroit Tigers and now a recreation officer at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, is considered certain to pilot the team.

Five Days in Jail

Harold Crawford, 44, of Bennington, Vt., was arrested at Port Ewen Friday by Deputy Sheriff Tinnie on a charge of disorderly conduct. Justice John O. Beaver sentenced him to five days in the county jail.

Atlanta, April 18 (AP)—Although exempt from qualifying tests, Bobby Jones will enter regional elimination matches for the Hale American Golf Tournament "just for the fun of it."

Supplanting the war-canceled National Open, the tournament will let in Jones and 19 others, past winners of major encounters. The regional and sectional tests here will be over East Lake course, Jones' "home" club where he consistently shoots under par.

A.A.U. Swim Meet

Detroit, April 18 (AP)—Gloria Callen, 18-year-old Nyack, N. Y., glamor girl, will seek to capture tonight one of the few swimming honors that has eluded her when she encounters a field headed by Defending Champion Helen Perry of Cleveland for the Women's National A.A.U. 100-yard backstroke championship. Miss Callen, who holds 32 or 33 aquatic records—she can't remember the precise number—has beaten the Ohio mermaid three times in five starts and is favored to dethrone her tonight. The field will include Joan Fogle and Betty Bemis of Indianapolis.

Sports Shorts

New York, April 18 (AP) — It would happen only in Brooklyn.

At yesterday's home opener of the National League baseball season a big, rotund individual jerked a cornet from beneath his tannish topcoat and saluted Pee Wee Reese, first Brooklyn batter, with "here comes the bride." Reese doffed his cap to the serenader.

Later, when Peter Reiser, also a recent bridegroom, came to the plate, the musician tooted a swing version of the same piece.

Reno, Nev., April 18 (AP)—Track Coach James Bailey should be an asset to the navy. He doesn't abandon the ship until the battle is won.

Last Saturday his University of Nevada squad won their first dual meet in seven years, when it dumped the California Aggies, 81 to 50.

After the victory, Bailey enlisted in the navy physical training program.

Albuquerque, N. M., April 18 (AP)—Eastern New Mexico College and the New Mexico Teachers both asked for the September 19 date on the New Mexico University football schedule.

So Coach Ted Shipkey petitioned the athletic council for permission to play both schools in a double-header.

Philadelphia, April 18 (AP)—Frank Hayes, the Athletics' star catcher, has branched out successfully into another sport—field trials.

His one-year-old pointer, Doon Mack—named after Hayes' boss, Connie—won first place yesterday in the South Jersey field trial club's spring derby stake.

Atlanta, April 18 (AP)—Although exempt from qualifying tests, Bobby Jones will enter regional elimination matches for the Hale American Golf Tournament "just for the fun of it."

Supplanting the war-canceled National Open, the tournament will let in Jones and 19 others, past winners of major encounters. The regional and sectional tests here will be over East Lake course, Jones' "home" club where he consistently shoots under par.

BRITISH CONVOY HEADS FOR MALTA

It was a windy Sunday forenoon, March 22, as these freighters loaded with vital munitions for Malta, mighty British Mediterranean fortress, steamed along in heavy seas directly south of the toe of the Italian boot escorted by a British squadron led by a cruiser. Axis high level and dive bombers attacked the convoy even as Associated Press Correspondent Preston Grover, aboard the British cruiser, made this picture.

Legion Plans Made For Ark Reception

Department Commander Comes to City May 15; Reports Are Given

At a regular meeting of the Kingston Post No. 150, of the American Legion held last night at the Memorial Building, at 18 West O'Reilly street, at which Commander Stanley H. Dempsey presided, the report of the committee in charge of the reception of Jacob Ark, department Legion commander, was given by the chairman, Herman I. DuBois.

The reception will be held at the municipal auditorium on May 15, under the auspices of the Ulster Legion Organization of which Chester Bradford of Elmville is commander. This reception will be free to the public and no tickets will be required.

The program will open with a salute to the colors, followed by the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. The county chaplain will offer the invocation. The county commander will be introduced and Mayor William F. Edelmuth will deliver the address of welcome. The state president of the Legion auxiliary will be introduced followed by the guest speaker of the evening, Legion State Commander Jacob Ark. All the officers of the county will be presented to the public, but will deliver no speeches. The county winner of the Legion Oratorical Contest, Miss Jean Lampart of Walkkill, will speak on "The Origin and Fate of the Constitution." The Rev. Clarence Brown, Kingston Post chaplain, will offer the benediction and the assembly will follow with the singing of America. Thereafter will follow dancing to the tunes of an orchestra donated by the Musicians' Union of Kingston.

The Legion voted to present an American flag to the Y. M. C. A. in recognition of the splendid work it does. Past Commander Edward Hillis was appointed as chairman to make all the needed arrangements for the occasion.

Poppy Day will be observed on May 13, with Mrs. Bernice Jansen representing the Auxiliary and William Mellert representing Kingston Post. As usual, the Legion's poppies will bear the yellow ribbon.

A nomination committee to present the future officers for the Post has been appointed by Commander Stanley H. Dempsey, consisting of the Rev. Clarence Brown as chairman, and the following as members of his committee: Morton Finch, Harry Whitney, Eugene Carey, Edward Hillis, Herman I. DuBois, Eugene P. McConnell, Andrew J. Murphy, Jr., Sam Mann, William Rodell, Abe Singer and Harry Kirchner.

Past Commander Ray Woodard has been appointed as chairman of the "Victory Essay Contest" to represent Kingston. The next meeting of the Post will be held on May 8, according to Commander Dempsey.

Nearly 10,000,000 pounds of chicle was produced in Yucatan last year.

Ex-Union Official, Poughkeepsie Man Gives Testimony

Van Leuvan Says He Called Milk Strike in 1938 When He Could See No Trouble

New York, April 18 (AP)—A defendant in a $157,000 extortion trial testified yesterday that he called an upstate milk strike in 1938 even though he could see "nothing wrong."

Hiram Van Leuvan of Poughkeepsie, former president of Local 448 of the A. F. L. International Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, said he received instructions to call the walkout from Jeremiah Buckley, secretary of the Local, "because companies there were not living up to their contract."

Buckley is one of the 12 other union leaders accused of extorting from Independent Retail Milk concerns to assure "favorable" union contracts.

Van Leuvan said he carried out the instructions, but that he could not find any trouble in the strike district. Two hours after the walkout, he testified he received word from Murray Gabaeff, alleged union "go-between" and also a defendant, to order the men back to work.

The witness said he resigned the union post in 1938 because of difficulties with Buckley.

Earlier H. Leon McBride, head of the W. L. McBride Trucking Co. of Goshen, N. Y., said that he had paid between $12,000 and $14,000 to Gabaeff from 1935 to 1939. The trial will be resumed Monday.

Home Defense

Eighth Ward

An important meeting of Eighth Ward Air Raid Wardens will be held Monday evening, at 7:30 o'clock.

Wardens Hear Talk

At a meeting of the air raid wardens of the Eleventh Ward held Friday evening at Community Hall, Fair and Franklin street, Chief Joseph L. Murphy of the fire department addressed the wardens on methods of attack to be pursued in the event of fires from incendiary bombings. The various types of extinguisher and manner of approach to the fire were explained and Chief Murphy also gave brief instruction on general combat of fires. The instruction by Chief Murphy completed the required three hours for wardens on fire fighting in the Eleventh Ward. Chief Murphy's talk last evening being the second of a series of talks.

Prior to the instruction given by Chief Murphy, Captain Miller spoke and during his talk he commented on the wardens of the Eleventh Ward on their work in the recent "incident" bombing.

Wesley L. Thompson of the New York Telephone Co. was introduced by Thomas J. Murray, chief warden for the Eleventh Ward, and a sound picture portraying the work of the telephone company in conjunction with air raid work and detection of planes was shown. The picture showed in considerable detail the action which takes place from the time a plane is spotted until the air raid warning is sounded and showed the part the telephone plays in the work.

Several wardens signed up for the advance class in first aid.

The above mentioned centers for registration will be open for registration on April 25, and 26, 1942, between the hours of 1 p. m. and 6 p. m., and on April 27, 1942, between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m., Eastern War Time.

As chief registrar, Chairman Lawrence H. van den Berg said that men within the age bracket for registration and within the jurisdiction of the board should have no trouble or serious delay at the fourth registration. Men are requested to register with the local board having jurisdiction over their place of residence.

Lend-Lease Aid Jumps

Washington, April 18 (AP)—The White House today reported a sharp upsurge of lend-lease aid to Russia, saying that two and a half times as much was sent in March as was sent in February. Exact figures on Russian aid, which President Roosevelt ordered sped up several weeks ago, were not disclosed but Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said the report showed "very favorable progress."

Arnold Envisions New World To Emerge From War, Because Of Intensive War Output

Washington, April 18 (AP)—It's a bright new world that trust-buster Thurman Arnold envisions after the war—a world of strong but light magnesium airplanes and automobiles, of rivetless ships and plastic windowpanes.

In fact, he told the Senate patents committee yesterday, the accelerated production due to the war will prove to be a peacetime bonanza—provided national and international trade restricting agreements are outlawed.

The assistant attorney general spoke during hearings on a bill which would permit the President to seize and license patents for the duration of the war. He said in his opinion the pending measure did not go far enough, but should be revised to take into consideration post-war problems. After the conflict ends, he declared, "the unrestricted production of new wealth will create opportunities for new enterprises, large and small, to a degree undreamed of."

Swinging his pince-nez glasses by a black ribbon, Arnold asserted the war was producing "new magic metals which can take the place of copper," that cheaper copper meant cheaper plumbing fixtures and that "this in turn means more abundant housing."

Magnesium, he pointed out, is 50 per cent lighter than aluminum, both metals will be produced in vastly increased quantities. New welding techniques will mean lighter planes, trucks and railroad cars, indicating, Arnold said, 10 to 15 per cent more cargo capacity and thus cheaper transportation. "Welding and the use of lighter metals can offer undreamed-of opportunities in house construction," he said.

"Mass production of a new fuel with a 110 octane rating and 50 per cent more powerful than the present 100 octane (aviation) gasoline will be a reality within the year," he continued.

"After the war—if a gasoline monopoly does not prevent—this new fuel will mean 30 per cent more miles to the gallon. X X X 'The consumers' dollar will be worth more than it ever was before, and the farmers' products can be traded for more manufactured goods than ever before."

Street Work Under Way

Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer of the Board of Public Works said today that a force of men from the street department had just completed scarifying, rolling and oiling that stretch of East Union street, between Hasbrouck avenue and Yeomans street. This section of East Union street is known to older residents as the High Road. This was the first street-building job started and completed so far this year.
